ALABAMA COLLEGE
The State College for Women
Montevallo

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office, Montevallo, Alabama

GENERAL INFORMATION

This bulletin is the result of an effort on the part of Home Study Service to furnish, for the tenth consecutive year, program helps to various women's organizations of Alabama. The increasingly large number of such organizations making use of this material from year to year, and the feeling on the part of Alabama College that a very worthwhile service is being rendered, are sufficient justification for offering these program helps in printed form.

This announcement does not contain the actual program materials on the various subjects, but merely lists the topics. A mimeographed program outline has been prepared on each of these topics, and will be sent to any representative of a women's organization on request. This outline will list the various subtopics together with books and special articles dealing with that phase of the subject. These books and special articles will be reserved for women's organizations as far ahead of the time wanted as may be desired.

THE REFERENCE LIBRARY

Home Study Service has a special collection of more than a thousand books and other reference materials suitable for women's organizations. In these are numerous special articles prepared for use in connection with the discussion of topics listed in this announcement. These books and other references will be loaned for periods of two weeks to individual club members or to clubs through the proper officers. No charge will be made for the use of the books or other materials, but requests for any of them must be accompanied by four cents for each reference, this to be used to pay postage.

HOW TO OBTAIN PROGRAM SERVICE

Organizations desiring to make use of the program materials of Home Study Service should carefully observe the following in making application:

1. Look through this bulletin and decide what subject or subjects your organization will study during the year. This is usually done by the program committee.
2. Using the application blank on page 21 of this bulletin, write to Home Study Service, Alabama College, Montevallo, Alabama, for program outline on the subject you choose. This outline will give the main subject and the various subjects for each meeting of the organization.
3. Use the program outline in making up your yearbook or program for the year.
4. Fill the blank which will be sent you along with the program outline. This blank will be the one on which you will list the subjects your club will discuss at each meeting.
5. Send the blank to Home Study Service, with four cents for each book or other reference you will want sent. These references will then be reserved for your club and sent to you in time to be used in preparing for a club meeting. Home Study Service urges that the chairman of the program committee act as borrower of all books for each club.

Clubs will get better service by reserving books and other materials for the year in advance. However, they may be ordered as needed, provided postage is sent with order, and provided they are available when needed.

All books and other references must be returned within two weeks. This means that they should be back in the library fourteen days from the date on which they were charged. This date is stamped on the inside back cover of the book.

HOW PROGRAM MATERIALS WERE PREPARED

The various program materials listed in this bulletin have been carefully prepared, usually by specialists in the different departments of Alabama College, acting in cooperation with the heads of these several departments. Those departments which have contributed to these materials are: Art, Biology, Education, English, History, Home Economics, Library, Music, Physical Education, Psychology, Religious Education, Secretarial Science, and Sociology. Much time has been devoted to the preparation of each outline, and references have been selected with the greatest care. Although a few of the subjects, as is indicated by the titles, are based on references which are more or less technical in their nature, most of them are simple and can readily be used by the average club.

DESCRIPTIVE LIST OF PROGRAMS

The following pages of this booklet give paragraph descriptions of the various club programs that are in file and ready to be sent out on request. Each outline contains enough material for one season's study, broken into from six to a dozen units. Many clubs make their yearbooks from one of these outlines, other clubs combine topics from several outlines. Either may be quite satisfactory.

ART

American Architecture

In this outline a study is made of the influences in American Architecture, together with their form and development through colonial days to the present. Readings and topics for seven meetings are suggested.

American Sculpture and Painting

Would you like to know more American sculpture and painting? Would you like to know about early American art along with present-day art forms? Would you like to know the sources of American art? This program outline will help toward just such information and culture.

America's Folk-Art

This outline contains interesting discussions on such subjects as early American glass, hand-wrought silver and pewter, embroidered pictures and samplers, decorated pottery, early American illumination, and early American hooked rugs. The outline contains sufficient material for eight club programs and is particularly appealing to those interested in antiques.

Art Appreciation

It is pretty generally agreed that art appreciation, like any other type of culture, may be acquired by almost anyone who is willing to pay the price,—and the price is continued, sympathetic study. This program outlines the field and gives the background and information for intelligent enjoyment of present-day art forms. The material is blocked into five units.

Art and Culture

Art is something to be used and enjoyed. It is a factor in home, community, and personal life. It has to do with citizenship as well as with personality. Such topics are treated in this outline which gives suggested readings and program materials.

Decorative Arts in Modern Homes

Lovely types of decorative arts are available today, many of which can be made at home. The types studied in this course include hand-loom weaving, Colonial and modern; hand-made rugs—woven, hooked and braided; Oriental rugs; hand block printing on fabrics and paper; leather and bookbinding; Japanese batik; European and Oriental embroidery; and hand-made laces.

BIOGRAPHY

American Women in Education

This study includes the life and work of such women as Mary Lyons, Susan Blow, Elizabeth Peabody, Patty Hill, Ana Bryant, Helen Parkhurst, Madam Montessori, Adelaide Nutting, Juliette Low and others. Various methods of education are discussed in connection with the work of these educators.

American Women in Social Service

Beginning with a definition of Social Service, this outline provides for a study of the chief problems which confront one in this work. Such topics as the unstable home, organizations within the settlement house, child welfare movement, and the juvenile court are introduced. The work of such women as Jane Addams, Lillian Wald, Miriam Van Waters, and Clara Barton is also studied.

Outstanding Leaders of the American Revolution

The loan list for this outline contains material on such leaders as John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Samuel Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, and George Washington.

Pioneers in Health

A study of the early scientists who made healthy living possible in this generation—their lives and contributions, also the present results of these contributions. The fascinating lives and times of Florence Nightingale, Clara Barton, our own William Gorgas, Joseph Lister, Edward Jenner, Walter Reed, Robert Koch, Louis Pasteur, and Edward Trudeau.

Romances of Medicine

This study will be most profitable from the standpoint of furnishing information about those people and events which have contributed most toward the progress of civilization and the alleviation of human suffering; and also from the standpoint of arousing interest in the importance of personal and community hygiene. In addition to real profit, the stories of the lives and works of these scientists will be surprisingly interesting.

Some Leaders of the Confederacy

The public life and affairs of such leaders as Alexander H. Stephens, Augustus Baldwin Longstreet, Jefferson Davis, Joe Wheeler, "Stonewall" Jackson, Robert Toombs are all brought into this discussion.

Statesmen of the Old South

This outline is developed in such a way as to reveal the problems of the early generations of American history and to provide for the study of the lives of the men who helped to solve them. Such men as George Washington, James Madison, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, John C. Calhoun, Henry Clay, Jefferson Davis, Alexander H. Stephens, and Robert Toombs are all brought into this discussion.

BUSINESSFamily Finance

Many a matrimonial bark is wrecked on the rock of poor finance. Satisfactory finance is more than making or having money,—it is wise use of money. This outline presents material for a study of the family's income, needs, resources, production, credit, budget, and investment. There is enough material for eight meetings.

How to Get the Most for Your Dollar

Each family has so much to spend and often that is little enough to give concern. Women do most of the buying and so they should know how to get the most for a well-spent dollar. There is need of information about standards and brands, labels and contents, sizes and grades of products, and this outline covers just such questions. You will be a better buyer for having studied this course.

Money: How to Make and Manage It

How do women make money? How and for what do they spend their money? How can they save money and in what should they invest their money? These are vital questions for every woman and this program outline suggests possible answers.

Women and the Law

What do you know about your property rights under the law? In case of your husband's death will you be the guardian of your children? Could you probate his estate? How are you affected by the law of contract?

A layman's knowledge of law is becoming more and more important for women. A year can be profitably spent in any club in the study of law as it affects women.

THE CHILD

Building Personality

The Children's Charter declares that "For every child understanding and the guarding of his personality is his most precious right." This outline furnishes material for eight programs on this subject. The topics are: wholesome personality, family security, emotional needs and difficulties, social needs and adjustments, success and failure, self-control, honesty and truthfulness.

Child Life in Other Lands

The study of boys and girls in other lands, how they play, study, dress and eat; their manners and customs.

Exploring with Our Children

"One who would educate a child must himself understand the child's world." In this outline is to be found leads which help to explore children's curiosity, books, music and art, religion, motion pictures, and money. Questions and references are given for each of these topics.

Happy Children

The child, too, is seeking happiness. The emotional and social habits and attitudes of the child contribute greatly to his happiness. Emphasis is placed on the emotional needs of the child and how we can best meet these needs.

Healthy Children

There has been a tendency to consider only the physical aspects of health, but there is a growing realization of the importance of mental health in the life of a child. This study includes the many factors contributing to physical and mental health.

The "Teen Age"

Everyone is interested in the years which precede maturity. They are full of possibilities and difficulties. In order to avoid misunderstandings it is imperative that those who come in contact with youth have a more complete understanding of the normal changes, physical and mental, which occur at this period.

Understanding the Different Child

It is pithily said that the only respect in which people are alike is in the fact that they are all different. Some of these differences are native; others are acquired, and it is in respect to the latter that something may be done. This outline gives questions and references on the topics, individual differences, heredity and environment, gifted children, handicapped children, and speech defects.

FAMILY PROBLEMS

Clothing for the Family

Many housewives find it a problem to clothe the family so that each member of the family is adequately protected and presents the best possible appearance and yet spends only a fair proportion of the family income. The topics of this course include economics of clothing; selection versus cost and use; clothing for mother and child; self-help clothes for the pre-school child; clothes for the teen-age boy and girl; the college wardrobe; the adult; care, renovating and renewing.

Cultivating the Social Graces

In the stress and strain of making a living too many have failed to learn the graceful art of living. Just as much as ever, and possibly more so, do we need to know about such lovely things as manners, letter writing, conversation, calling, and entertaining. There is abundant material in this outline for several interesting programs.

Family Relationships

The aim of this outline is to assist families in developing the tolerance and understanding necessary in maintaining happy family relations. The family's career, beliefs, team work, individuality, neighbors, leisure, and future are considered.

Home Management and Successful Family Life

This course brings to the group a fund of facts relative to the whys and wherefores of home management for a satisfying family life. It should be a very profitable course since all the facts presented are related to everyday living. This permits the course to develop on a realistic and functional basis.

Managing the Family Income

This course is planned for women wishing direction for reading in this field, who desire to learn the most satisfactory methods of managing family income, and the ways to gain skill in this experience. There is enough material for several interesting programs.

The Family as a Social Institution and Some of Its Problems

A study of how the institution of the family originated; its history from ancient times up to modern days; and some of its modern problems.

The Family Through the Ages

This course presents a review of the history of the family as a basic institution of society. The evolution of the family is surveyed as a social, religious, industrial and economic unit, together with the factors and trends affecting family life.

GARDENING

Flower Gardening

It's much more fun to have a garden of one's own than it is to read about a neighbor's garden. Why not have a flower garden? This outline tells you what to do and when to do it. There is something to do and enjoy from April to April, and at the club you can exchange ideas with your friends.

HEALTH

Health Problems in the Modern Family

No problem is more important than that of the family's health. Without health nothing else is of much use. For this reason the modern woman is interested in those factors which either promote or menace the health of her family. In this outline she will find materials and topics for the consideration of public health and sanitation, sources of infection, personal health, and home care of the sick.

Mental Health

Mental health is as important as physical health, or perhaps more so. In truth, one is so dependent upon the other that the modern woman needs to know both. This outline in a most interesting way considers the factors that go to make up mental health,—attitudes, fears, success and failure, discipline, happiness, and occupation. With each of the topic studies goes a fifteen-minute paper ready to read. Other readings and topics are suggested for program enrichment.

To Be Healthy Is to be Wealthy

"To be healthy is to be wealthy" is both poetry and fact—and this outline gives the facts. Good food is not necessarily expensive food. Proper food is a matter of wise choice. Just as one should know about food for infants so should one know about food for adolescents and adults. Choice of food is closely related to income level and the intelligent woman should consider such problems.

HISTORYDevelopment of Government in the United States

The material for this outline provides for an extensive study of the development of our government. It begins with the early history of America and traces the evolution of our government to the present time.

History of the Confederacy

This outline treats such subjects as the formation and organization of the Confederacy, its military, economic, and political history, and its relations with foreign countries. An interesting study is also made of the women of the Confederacy.

Our State

A study of the book by Marie Bankhead Owen, called "Our State—Alabama," is used as a basis for this outline. The programs deal with the leading events in the history of Alabama; its wars, Indian leaders, statesmen, educators, governors, etc. The industrial development of Alabama is also discussed.

The Old South

This program has the flavor of "The Old South," treating as it does of the plantation system, homes and social conditions, life and literature, famous names and places of that day. Alabama's contribution to the Confederacy is also indicated.

LITERATUREAmerican Women in Literature

This topic provides for the study of such women writers as Harriet Beecher Stowe, Louisa May Alcott, Emily Dickinson, Edith Wharton, Agnes Repplier, Amy Lowell, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Edna St. Vincent Millay, etc. The loan list contains descriptions of the lives of these writers as well as many of their books. This outline also contains a most interesting list of questions about these authors and their works.

Book Reviews

Home Study Service has a file of reviews of recent outstanding novels taken from the New York Times. Each gives a general review of the book with comments and criticisms from the person reviewing the book and most of them are long enough and in a style interesting enough to be used as a program number. A list of the books reviewed in this series will be sent upon request, and a club may then select as many as it may wish to use.

Children's Literature

This outline, which contains material for eight meetings, suggests a study of several types of literature suitable for children of elementary school age. The books selected are studied for both their appeal to children and their literary value.

Contemporary Drama

This outline groups some sixty or seventy modern plays into a dozen classifications such as comedy, war, business, philosophy, race, etc. There are also given several references on plays and their study. Clubs which use this outline will borrow the plays from Home Study Service Library and read and comment on them in their meetings.

Outstanding Recent Novels

Works by such authors as Sheila Kay-Smith, Virginia Woolf, Esther Forbes, John Steinbeck, and Erich Maria Remarque, etc., are introduced in this outline. The programs are planned so that the novels selected furnish excellent examples of varied subjects and styles of writing. (Home Study Service cannot promise to furnish these references.)

Recent American Short Stories

This study is based on the stories contained in the "O. Henry Memorial Award: Prize Stories" and "The Best Short Stories," edited by E. J. O'Brien. It contains sufficient material for eight programs.

Recent Plays

This outline suggests a study of recent leading types of plays, grouped under such headings as historical, problem, comedy, political, and religious.

The South in Contemporary Novels

Since the experience of everyone is limited and since breadth of view is necessarily based in part on breadth of experience (though experience is no guarantee of a broad vision), the vicarious experience to be gained from a thoughtful reading of the best sort of fiction has no small value. This study course in contemporary novels of the South is an attempt to gain such breadth. Not all of the books included in this list are great literature. Many of them are unpleasant; few of them offer much support to the smug self-satisfaction that is all too common among the upper strata of Americans. But let it be remembered that they are nearly all significant pictures of Southern life by Southerners who are giving the truth as they see it. This study should be undertaken, if at all, in an effort to understand how other people live and feel and think. It should be followed through without rancor, without being shocked, and without the lewd enjoyment that underlies scandal.

MUSIC

Contemporary Music

A survey of what is new in music. Trends of the day in community music, radio, negro music, and permanent concert music are studied. A list of Victrola records and listening analyses are furnished to enrich the program. The Sunday edition of the New York Times should be clipped and posted in a club album. References from other books and current magazines will be furnished.

The Saturday afternoon concerts by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra should enhance this study. An interesting addition would be a parallel survey of art and literature of the same period.

Music of 19th Century

This period covers the Romantic, Realistic, Nationalistic, and Impressionistic movements in art, literature, and music.

Lives of composers of this period, such as Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, Debussy, are studied. Analysis of their music should precede a program by members of the club or on the Victrola. Suggested programs will be furnished with listening guides and reference reading.

Opera

This program outline covers a study of operas of the 19th century, such as Wagner's "Ring," and French and Italian Romantic operas. Such a study of the stories of the operas with Victrola records of famous arias should prepare the members for listening to the Metropolitan operas on Saturday afternoons during the season.

Orchestral Music

A survey of orchestral music beginning with the classic symphonies of Haydn and analyzing Beethoven, Tschaikovsky, Brahms, Franck, Schubert and Debussy, in turn.

Listening guides and lists of Victrola records will be furnished for these programs, as well as reference readings on the style and form of each composer. A study of this outline should add to the pleasure of the New York Philharmonic Sunday Concerts.

OUR HOMES

A Home of Your Own

This course is designed to bring to the group many important facts concerning the house, which to most people have been vague. The questions are designed to stimulate discussion concerning the facts. The questions should bring to light the many choices that must be made in working through plans for the house and home.

A Travelogue of Homes

A travelogue to the many kinds and types of homes in Alabama including our summer playground, the state parks, and our winter sports, the gulf; getting better acquainted with our neighbors, their homes and home life and their surroundings, and their influence on their happiness.

Art in Home Living

A knowledge and appreciation of art principles in selecting and arranging articles we use daily gives us an aesthetic pleasure and also is really economical. Things well chosen remain in style after poorly designed articles are hopelessly old fashioned. Programs in this series include color and its use, dress design, furniture arrangement, the use of old furniture, the selection and hanging of pictures, and flower arrangement.

Choosing Equipment for Your Home

Selection of household equipment should be considered from the aspect of home utility or usefulness and mechanical operation. Pointers are given in this unit to aid the housewife in wise purchasing of household equipment and tools.

East or West, Home's Best

"East or West, Home's Best" emphasizes the home as a place of happiness. The topics suggested include (1) the house itself, (2) house decoration, care, and equipment, (3) the members of the family, (4) the home and its relations, and (5) changes affecting the home and family life.

Let's Have a Party

It is too bad when children have to leave home to have a party. A wise mother will have many parties at home. There will be Thanksgiving dinners, parties, and teas; birthday parties, and community picnics. This outline tells how to have a good party on such occasions.

Our Homes as Our Background

Few people realize how vividly one's home expresses her personality to others. An attractive home depends more upon selection and arrangement than upon the amount of money spent. The topics suggested in this series include personality in the home, the importance of a plan in buying and arranging household furnishings, backgrounds, —walls, floors and ceilings, furniture arrangement, making the best of what you have, rugs and floor covering, household textiles, windows and their decorative treatment, and decorative accents in the home—books, lamps, pottery, etc.

Sharing a Good Time with Others

The aim of this series is to develop an appreciation of and a willingness to use all available material to establish within the family group an atmosphere of harmony and to arouse a desire to share this good fellowship with others.

Southern Colonial Life and Homes

Perhaps no subject excites our imagination more than thoughts of life and customs in the Southern Colonies. The programs prepared on the homes of this time include manners and customs in the Southern Colonies, homes of Maryland and Virginia, homes of Charleston, South Carolina, homes of New Orleans, homes of Alabama, Southern gardens, furniture and furnishings, and restoration of old furniture.

The Home in Colonial Days

A study of the family in colonial days; the home and its furnishings; the food and its service; the recreation and work in the home, the manners and customs; the dress and habits of the boys and girls; Colonial art and needle work. Homes and old-time flower gardens can suggest exhibits or trips for interest in studying the home life of Colonial days.

Wise Use of Leisure for Artistic Enjoyment

Using what you have in your home, make each room, the house, garden, and yard beautiful and artistic.

RELIGION

Religious Education in the Family

The material for this study is taken largely from the book by Cope called "Religious Education in the Family". The present status of American family life is discussed in connection with the ideals, morals, and religion of the present generation.

The Minor Prophets

This is an unusually rich and interesting course suitable for missionary societies, Bible study groups, and young people's meetings. The background, outline, message and reading for each of the twelve Minor Prophets are given in the outline. References, notes, and suggested discussion questions are also given for each program.

World Religions and the People Who Follow Them

Some interpreters of our times are asserting that in spite of the apparent dominance of secularism there is a wider interest and a more serious purpose to understand religion prevailing among the people's of the world today than ever before manifested in the history of civilization. One philosopher has described man as "incurably religious".

This series of programs is designed to give general information on the basic living faiths which are influencing world civilizations and affecting the happiness of their adherents. It is not intended to approach these questions in a profound way, but to open this field of study so that it may be pursued more intensively by those individuals who have the time and a deeper interest in further pursuing it.

There will be nine programs dealing with such topics as: The Religions of the Far East; Confucianism and the Chinese People; Taoism and its Effect on Basic Mongolian Philosophy; the People of Japan and the Spiritual Nature of Shintoism; India, the Most Religious Land in the World; Religion in India and its Effect on Womanhood; Buddhism as a Missionary Religion; Moses, the Founder of Judaism; the Western World and Christianity.

(Note: This is in process of preparation and will be ready by September.)

SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Contemporary American Problems

This outline is designed to aid clubs desiring to build up an understanding of the social and economic problems of the present day. Such problems as the following are presented: Economic Security, Banking and Finance, Business Regulation, Economic Planning, and Nationalism. Citations are made to current courses of information.

Current Social Problems in Alabama

This course consists of a study of present-day social problems in Alabama. These problems are selected with reference to their importance to the state. There is enough material for eight interesting meetings: the problem of soil and its utilization; living conditions, including food deficiency; sickness and health; problem of neglected and dependent children; problem of the aged; problem of crime; problem of school attendance; problem of inadequate educational opportunities.

International Relations

This outline is designed to give a better understanding of the machinery by which relations between modern states are carried on—such as the League of Nations, the World Court, conferences, arbitration, conciliation, diplomacy, and the consular service.

The latter part of the course deals with international relations of the important countries of the world, and the references listed should be supplemented by articles in current magazines.

Political Ideas in Europe

The material in this outline is designed to give a clearer understanding of the most important political movements in Europe at the present time—Fascism, Communism, and the Nazi movement, with an introductory lesson on why dictatorships have become necessary in Europe.

Present-Day "Isms"

What do Socialists, Communists, Fascists, and such other political and economic groups really advocate? Can they function in a democracy? Are we in America headed towards any one of them? Present-day women are interested in such questions and this program outline suggests possible answers. There is enough material for several meetings.

The "New Deal" Series

Home Study Service has had many requests for program materials on the Roosevelt administration. In an effort to meet this demand the topics listed below are offered. Each of the topics might be used as the subject of one club meeting. A list of specially selected references on any of these subjects will be sent to clubs on request. These references, in the form of new books and magazine articles, will be loaned to clubs asking for them. Both the lists of references and the references themselves may be obtained by following the directions given elsewhere in this bulletin. The references are so selected as to permit study of both sides of the question listed.

Suggested Topics on the "New Deal"

What is the New Deal?
What Made a New Deal Necessary?
The President Becomes the Big Boss
Work Relief
The New Deal and the Farmer
The New Deal and the Banks
The Federal Government and the New Deal
Paying for the New Deal

The New Deal and the Consumer
The New Deal and Our Neighbors
The New Deal and the Railroads
Retrospect over Two Years and Criticism of the New Deal

Why We Have Poverty in a Rich Land

One of the strangest aspects of modern life is the existence of widespread poverty side by side with unused abundance. Recent reports indicate that two-thirds of our people are undernourished even during prosperous times. The world has the resources, natural and mechanical, to provide all with comfort. What is wrong? What can we do? The program outline indicates answers to such questions.

Women and Their Organizations

This course consists of a study of the history, purpose, and accomplishments of such leading organizations among women as The Federation of Women's Clubs, The Parent-Teacher's Association, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Daughters of the American Revolution, League of Women Voters, American Association of University Women, and Women's Party, a full program being devoted to each organization.

Your Community and Its Resources

Hardly anyone who has not made a careful survey has any idea of the educational and cultural resources of her own community. In every town and city there are physical, governmental, social, historical, and recreational factors of high importance. Or perhaps some one of these factors in a community is not on a level with the others. What is the condition in your own community? This study outline will help you find out.

TRAVEL

Africa's Wonderland

This great continent is truly a wonderland of age and modernity, desert and jungle, white people and black people, culture and superstition. There is enough material in this outline for eight club meetings and they will be different.

Europe—Yesterday and Today

Most people hope to visit Europe some day. In the meantime, why not find out about England, Ireland, France, Spain, Germany, Holland, Italy, and Greece? This outline furnishes suggestions and reading enough for a meeting based upon a study of each of these countries.

From North to South

Why not know about America, North and South? This outline somewhat in aeroplane fashion takes one over both continents, with views of the major divisions of both. One sees Alaska, Canada, New England, the South, the Northwest, the Southwest, Mexico, and South America. There is abundant material for eight club programs.

Latin America Past and Present

One is always interested in next-door neighbors and so we are interested in the peoples to the south of us. This program outline organizes materials, both fact and fiction, on Colonial Latin America,

Latin America Today, and the land, culture, and social problems of South America. There are eight topics, closing with Pan Americanism.

Russia

This amazing country is perhaps the most interesting study in present-day geography and travel. This outline gives materials for ten club programs, covering such subjects as Communism, Religion, Education, Agriculture, and Family Life in Russia, together with a glance at the future of Russia.

The Far East

This is an interesting study of China and Japan and their influence in the Far East. The history, civilization, and customs of each country are discussed. References are made to significant studies, fiction, and magazine articles.

Travels Through the Orient

All the fascinating features of Oriental travel are discussed in this outline which contains sufficient material for eight club programs. Studies of India, Persia, Arabia, Afghanistan, Burma, Siam, Japan, China, and the Philippines are developed in a most interesting manner.

FICTION AND BIOGRAPHY

Listed below is the biography and fiction in the Home Study Service library which may be had for reading purposes as well as to use on club programs. These books are loaned for periods of two weeks to individual club members or to clubs through proper officers. No charge is made for the use of the books, but request for any of them should be accompanied by a postage payment of four cents for each book requested. We suggest that these books be borrowed through your club chairman, and ordered on the application blank in the back of this bulletin.

OTHER TYPES OF SERVICE

Parent-Teacher Program Material

In addition to the service offered in this bulletin, Home Study Service of Alabama College is prepared to furnish free program outlines and study materials specially prepared for the use of Parent-Teacher organizations. A special bulletin describing this service is available upon request.

Radio Home Study Club

Alabama College maintains a Radio Home Study Club for members of parent-teacher associations. During 1936-37 a large number of local units and individuals took advantage of this opportunity to study along the line of parent education. Those interested in this for next year should write for further information to Alabama College Radio Home Study Club, Alabama College, Montevallo.

Lyceum Programs

Arrangements may be made with this office for members of the regular faculty to make special appearances as lecturers and musicians.

Correspondence Courses

Credit courses in regular college subjects are offered by correspondence. Information regarding correspondence courses may be had by writing Director of Home Study Service, Alabama College, Montevallo, Alabama.
